Clinical Rehabilitation and Mental Health Counseling, M.S.

Degree Offered

- Master of Science

Nature of the Program

The clinical rehabilitation and mental health counseling program offers a curriculum at the master’s degree level. All students complete coursework in core counseling knowledge and skill development as well as knowledge associated with disability, mental health, addiction, and rehabilitation issues. The opportunities for working as a professional counselor are numerous and include working in allied health settings, state-federal systems of vocational rehabilitation, Veterans’ Affairs, and delivering counseling services in mental health and/or substance use disorder treatment programs.

The program is available for both full- and part-time students in a hybrid modality that uses asynchronistic online courses coupled with two immersion weeks on campus for counseling skill development. The program is fully accredited by the Council for Accreditation of Counseling and Related Educational Programs (CACREP) for the specializations of Clinical Rehabilitation Counseling and Clinical Mental Health Counseling until 2023 and is a WVU Program of Excellence. The program is ranked in the top 50 programs for rehabilitation counseling by U.S. News and World Report.

Admissions

APPLICATION

Applications for admission to the clinical rehabilitation and mental health counseling program must be made to the WVU Office of Admissions. In addition to the admission requirements of the university and the College of Applied Human Sciences, the program has the following admission requirements.

- A baccalaureate degree with coursework in appropriate areas
- A minimum undergraduate grade point average of 2.8 based on a 4.0 system (students with a lower grade point average and otherwise exceptional credentials may be admitted provisionally); under 2.5 GPA cannot be admitted without faculty consideration
- GRE or MAT scores: current within seven years. A minimum score is not used as the only criterion for admission; use of multiple criteria is particularly important when using GRE scores to assess the abilities of educationally disadvantaged applicants, applicants whose primary language is not English, and applicants who are returning to school after an extended absence
- Three letters of reference (can be submitted within the WVU electronic application system)
- Completion of the WVU Graduate School Application (https://graduate.wvu.edu/)
• Completion of the program’s supplemental application found on the program’s website (http://counseling.wvu.edu/rehabilitation_counseling/future_students/) with a personal statement

ADMISSION

Admission to the program is a two-step procedure.

Step 1 involves a review of credentials presented in the application materials including references, program application (relevant major; general quality of application), UGPA, and Graduate Record Exam (GRE) scores or the Miller’s Analogy Test (MAT) scores. In addition to your interest, aptitude, and career goals related to counseling, the personal statement and recommendation letters should include your perspectives, respect for, and/or skills pertaining to cultural differences. The initial screening decision is based upon this information. Successful applicants are then invited to participate in department interviews.

Step 2 is the department interview which considers personal style relevant to working as a counselor, communication skills, capacity for empathic understanding and communication, ability to articulate professional goals, goals congruent with department focus, and knowledge and understanding of rehabilitation counseling as well as an assessment of applicants’ capacity to complete the rehabilitation counseling curriculum successfully.

The application deadline for receiving completed materials is March 15 for fall admission and October 1 for spring admission.
