Graphic Design

Bachelor of Fine Arts in Graphic Design

Design today is more than web sites, print media, exhibits, branding or even social media. It is about informing, stimulating, persuading and empowering social change. Design now comes in at the front end of problems instead of decorating the message given to designers. It is an exciting time to be a designer. We work with communities and grants or author our own projects that advance innovation we believe is needed.

Graduates of the graphic design program are at the headquarters of Coca Cola, at the helm of NBC's entertainment division in Burbank, in major packaging firms, designing the web interests of The New York Times, creating multimedia for large corporations in Washington, DC, and designing for social concerns in the national offices of Big Brothers/Big Sisters and environmental groups.

Graduates have also stayed in the state, contributing to West Virginia by working at newspapers, the University, television stations, local agencies, and their own businesses. As part of their preparation, students have interned inside and outside the University and worked on client-initiated projects in the classroom.
