

Diversity in Physical Activity and Sport

Minor Code - U196

The Diversity in Physical Activity and Sport minor is designed for students wanting to extend their exploration of physical activity and sport as sites for understanding issues of diversity and social justice and further examine the vital role of diversity in one's personal and professional life. Students may select courses spanning topics of race and ethnicity, gender, disability, socioeconomic status, and more in both national and global contexts. This minor is appropriate for any student pursuing a career in physical activity, sport, or related industry. Additional prerequisites may be required for courses selected to complete this minor.
